Back in Genoa after twenty-five years to attend the funeral of his youth's best friend, Luca meets again his old companions from that time. Everyone seems convinced that the death is the predictable outcome of a life of excesses; everyone except Luca, who wants to clarify, investigate, understand. Digging into memory, and in a city changed as much as he has, he will bring back ghosts and truths that seemed buried, along with his true nature, which he thought he had tamed forever.

Talking about my film, for the first time as a director, is a new exercise. Con la grazia di un dio is the story of a man who 'like Achilles, brings the war,' unable to express his own feelings and forced to delve into the darkness that, like all of us, he carries within. But it is also a film about time, a film of ghosts, of men and women haunted by a past that is both romanticism and pain.
